STATEMENT: This website is a dynamically generated Pdf, utilizing modern web technologies every time the user opens the url. Most obvious this can be experienced by the current date and weather forecast directly written to the → cover page. Just like any website it has an interactive navigation, is fully responsive and optimized to search engines. Behind the scenes it connects to an analytics account for gathering user data, of course every instance is anonymized and works without cookies. Nevertheless this website also extends common web practices: By its Pdf nature it’s easily downloadable, printable, rotateable and zoomable. Therefore it challenges the boundaries of the classic online / offline symbiosis. It’s vague state of representing dynamic data while being a static file also makes it a unique fragment of time.
